Welcome to yet another exciting season in the continuing tradition of the Concordia Stingers men's and women's teams.

The Stingers have achieved prominent successes in the past, and I know our athletes will continue to represent Concordia well in the future. They have demonstrated a willingness to work hard and aim high.

A university education provides more than knowledge and skills in the discipline of your choice. Along with the formal classes, seminars and laboratories, the university experience includes the informal intellectual, social, athletic and cultural encounters that deepen and enrich your understanding of yourself and what you wish to contribute to society.

Intercollegiate sports are an important part of the Concordia experience. Our teams are competitive and continue to be a source of pride to the entire University community. They deserve our full support and loyalty.

Enjoy the games and join me in encouraging the Stingers during the upcoming season.

Harry Zarins
Director of Recreation & Athletics

Harry Zarins

On behalf of the Department of Recreation and Athletics, I would like to welcome you to one of the great traditions of Concordia University. Welcome to the 1997-'98 intercollegiate sports season.

It's a very exciting time for the varsity athletes and their supporters. The Campaign for a New Millennium is under way, and the prospect of new and improved athletic and recreation facilities has given everyone a renewed sense of enthusiasm. The strong show of support from the entire University community is much appreciated. What a way to start our seasons, knowing there's so many people who recognize the importance of having goals and dreams and pursuing them.

I would like to offer my heartfelt thanks to all the people whose support helps keep the Stingers on the leading edge of Canadian university sports. Our student-athletes would not be able to reach such a high level of excellence without the support of sponsors, alumni, fans, friends and family.

I urge you to join me in cheering the Stingers on to great success. I hope to see you often.

Welcome to Concordia University

With approximately 25,000 students (of which 13,157 study full-time), 3,000 faculty and staff members, and more than 80,000 alumni worldwide, Concordia University is one of Canada's largest and most dynamic institutions of higher learning.

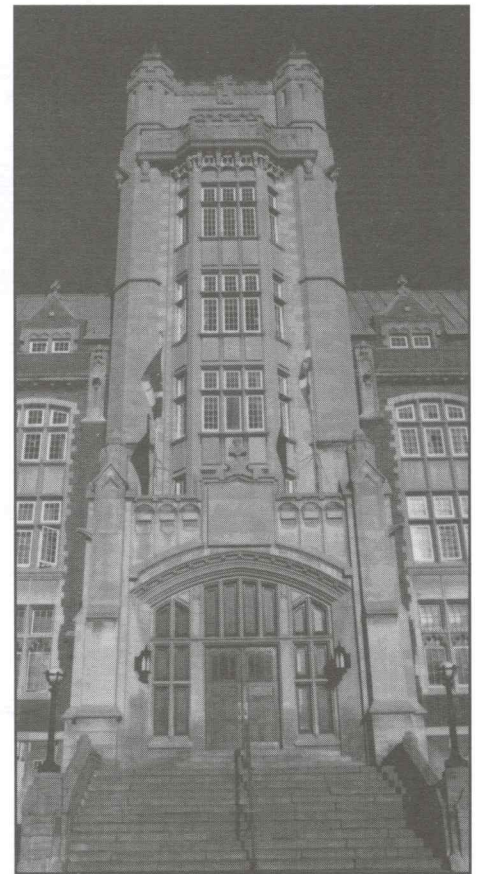

From its founding institutions – Loyola College (1896) and Sir George Williams University (1873) – Concordia has inherited a tradition of superior teaching supported by the best possible scholarship, creative activity, research and service to society. The merger of the two institutions took place in 1974.

The university has two campuses: Sir George Williams, which has approximately 42 buildings spread over 13 blocks of downtown Montreal; and Loyola, which sits seven kilometres away on 46 acres in picturesque westend Montreal. The latter has 37 buildings. There is a free shuttle-bus service which runs between the two campuses.

Academic offerings are grouped into four undergraduate faculties: commerce and administration, fine arts, engineering and computer science, and arts and science, covering a total of 180 subject areas. In addition, the School of Graduate Studies offers as many as 61 programs leading to master's and doctoral degrees or graduate diplomas.

Whether you are looking for a highly structured program in a particular field or for the flexibility of interdisciplinary studies, you will find them at Concordia. We have a long tradition of giving students the opportunity to plan programs to suit their needs. In doing so, we have created some of the most innovative educational thinking in the university milieu today.

Concordia University also provides students with programs and services to enhance their academic achievement and promote their personal development as responsible, well-rounded individuals. Student Services recognizes that all development, both intellectual and personal, is affected by a number of circumstances: financial, cultural, physical, ethical and psychological. A wide range of activities and services helps students to cope with challenges in these and other areas. The overall aim of all programs is to ensure that students can make the most of their university experience.

For information on admissions at Concordia call (514) 848-2668. To find out more about playing varsity sports with the Stingers call (514) 848-3862.

Concordia Women's Basketball Coaches

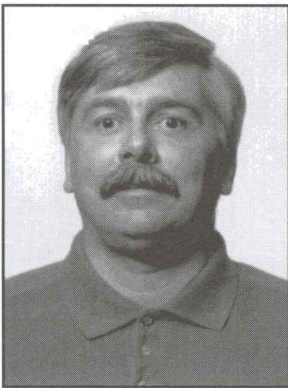

Keith Pruden
Head Coach

Head coach Keith Pruden is now in his third season at the helm of the Concordia Stingers women's basketball team. In two short years he has compiled a 38-26 win-loss record and has made great strides with the program. He inherited a third-place team in 1995 and took it up a notch, finishing second in the QSSF in his rookie campaign. Last season, his charges finished with a 16-4 win-loss record and upset the top-ranked McGill Martlets to win the Quebec conference championship and a trip the CIAU nationals in Thunder Bay, Ont., where the Stingers finished sixth in the nation.

Pruden comes to Concordia from the highly successful basketball program at the University of Winnipeg, where he was an assistant with the Wesmen from 1989-'95. While with Winnipeg, he won three consecutive CIAU championships ('93, '94, '95). During that period, the Wesmen tied a college record with 88 consecutive wins in the fall of 1994. The UCLA men's basketball team set the record for college victories in the early 1970s.

Pruden has also enjoyed many achievements with the Manitoba provincial program. He was head coach of the junior women's basketball team in '94 and '95. He was in charge of Manitoba's juvenile team in '93. That year he was named the Manitoba Basketball Coaches Association Coach of the Year.

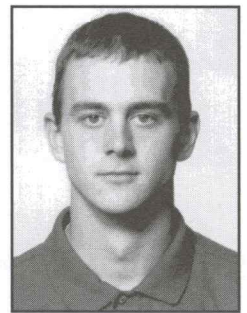

Bob Maks
Assistant Coach

Bob Maks is in his first season as an assistant with the Stingers. Although he is new to the university game, he has a wealth of experience as a basketball coach and an educator. He has been a devoted volunteer with the Brookwood Basketball Association for many years. Most recently he coached Brookwood's juvenile girls team. Maks is well-respected throughout the Montreal and Quebec basketball scene and will play a role in raising Concordia's profile in the community. Away from the courts, Maks is the principal of Argyle Academy, a local high school.

Tenacious Marie-Hélène Héroux excels on and off the court

Now in her fourth year, Marie-Hélène Héroux is ready for the attention and responsibilities that go along with being a Stinger captain.

By Brenda O'Farrell

Confronting obstacles and getting over them is a theme that keeps repeating itself in Marie-Hélène Héroux's life.

You could almost say that the 5-foot-11 starting post on Concordia University women's basketball team has turned the practice into the secret to her success. The key is that the obstacle has to be high enough.

For example, when the Trois Rivières native enrolled at Concordia four years ago, she did not speak a word of English. Today, she is fluently bilingual and working diligently learning a third language, Spanish.

"I was ready to learn," Héroux said, explaining why she opted to immerse herself into an English milieu. "I wanted to learn English. I liked the team. I liked the girls who were playing."

The rest — like the fear of having to write essays and exams in a language that was foreign to her — didn't faze her.

Then there are the economic realities of being a student living away from home. Héroux knows what it means to pay her own way.

To pay tuition and support herself throughout the year of full-time studies and an athletic career, Héroux spends her summers working as many as three jobs. She cuts that back to one part-time post in the fall. There is no time to goof off. But that's the price of determination.

"I would like not to work because it takes a lot of my time, but I have no choice," she said.

But that is not a complaint.

"The more you have to do, the more you do," she explained.

This season all the hard work is poised to pay off where it counts — on the court. After spending three years in the shadows of other top players on the Concordia squad, Héroux has been promoted to a starting role. The stage is set for her to shine.

This challenge may be her biggest obstacle yet. But the smart money is riding on her.

"She is a tough, tough, tough kid and a very fierce competitor," said head coach Keith Pruden. "We wouldn't be very good without her."

Pruden admits that Héroux has never been given any prominent recognition, but now the timing is right for all that to change.

"I think it's my time now to show people I am as good as them," Héroux said, referring to former team stars like Patricia Demers and Isabelle Bernier.

Being named one of three team captains has been the first formal recognition of the important role she is expected to play this season.

She has her priorities set and embraces the challenge that lies ahead of her.

"I'm working hard," she said. "I like doing what I'm doing. I love competition. I like going to school. I'm going to go all the way."

International success motivates Guylaine Blanchette for university season

By Brenda O'Farrell

If you believe in it, you can do it.

This is the philosophy Guylaine Blanchette not only subscribes to, but lives — each and every day. The 23-year-old forward on Concordia University's women's basketball team has made her mark by setting goals and achieving them — one at a time, in perfect succession. And she is not quite done yet.

"You have to work hard to get to where you want to go," said Blanchette. "I think I'm a person who likes to work hard. I'm very positive."

Armed with this attitude and an unbridled enthusiasm for her sport, she is looking to turn this season — which may possibly be her last — into a success for both herself and the team.

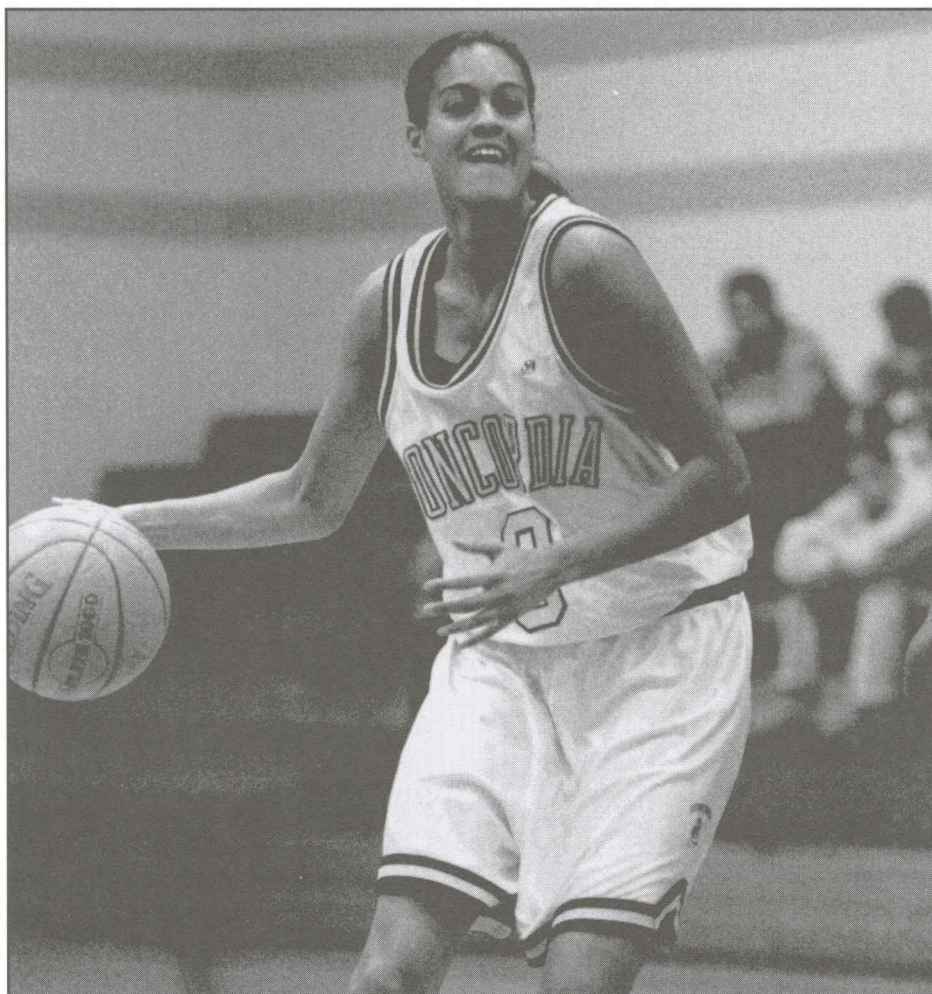

"I want to win the Quebec championships and then go on to the nationals and win it all," said Blanchette, one of three captains of this year's varsity squad.

This plan will help make up for the disappointment the team suffered last year, finishing No. 6 at the nationals after beating the top-ranked McGill Martlets for the Quebec conference title. It's not just talk, though. Blanchette has proven she has the ability to rise to the occasion.

Last summer, she was invited to try out for the Canadian national university women's basketball team. By the time the tryouts were over, she was on the team and packing her bags for Sicily, Italy, where she competed in the World University Games.

"That was a big goal of mine," she said, remembering the experience. "I pictured myself in a national team uniform."

Representing Canada at the international level has its positive spinoffs, too.

While she's back in Concordia Stinger colors, forward Guylaine Blanchette will always treasure her red and white Team Canada uniform.

"It builds up your esteem because you know you're one of the best in Canada," she explained.

It also raises the level of expectation swirling around her. Now, her immediate goal is to parlay her personal success to help the entire team shine. It's just a little added pressure, you could say.

"I don't let that bother me," she said, when asked how she deals with that pressure. "I put it aside."

That doesn't mean she ignores it, though. She hopes the high expectations will help her teammates gain the confidence they need to perform well on the court. It's an outlook that is shared by head coach Keith Pruden.

"I expect her to be a leader," Pruden said of Blanchette. "Guylaine is not an especially vocal person, ... but I expect her to be a leader in the way she plays."

Pruden makes no secret of the fact that he has his eye on competing for the national title this year. He spends even less effort on attempting to hide that his star forward will make a big contribution to that effort. But in his mind, Blanchette has already made her mark.

"To achieve the level of excellence that she has, that's a pretty remarkable feat," Pruden said. "It amazes me."

Dore, Birsan hope summer success rubs off on Stingers

By Derek Cassoff

Between them, John Dore and Danut Birsan have been involved in hundreds, if not thousands, of basketball games. But neither the head coach of the Concordia Stingers nor his 32-year-old rookie forward say they have ever experienced anything quite like the Maccabiah Games, which they took part in last summer.

The Maccabiah Games, held in Israel once every four years, bring together the top Jewish athletes from around the world in a competition modelled after the Olympics. The 1997 event, the biggest yet, attracted more than 6,000 athletes from nearly 60 countries.

Dore, head coach of the Canadian squad, and Birsan, a six-foot-seven power forward, each played instrumental roles as Canada finished atop the 16-team pool. It marked the first time this country has ever won a gold medal in basketball at the Games.

"It was a totally different experience from anything that I had ever done before," said Dore, who has guided Canadian teams at several prestigious events, including the 1994 Commonwealth Games.

"It was just fantastic. I can't find the words to describe it," added Birsan, a Romanian native who immigrated to Canada last April and qualified to play for the Canadian team based on his landed-immigrant status.

Entering the tournament, the Canadian squad had been warned not to expect anything more than a bronze medal; the Israelis and the Americans, powerhouses on the court at previous Maccabiah Games, were once again expected to meet in the gold medal game.

But a strange thing happened on the way to that game; while the Danut Birsan, in sweater No. 13, and John Dore, second from the right in the front row, celebrate their gold medal victory in Israel.

Americans fell out of contention with a loss to Great Britain, the Canadians advanced to the finals with a stunning overtime victory over Israel in a match contested on a kibbutz in the West Bank.

Canada then crushed the British entry in an anti-climatic final.

"When we first set out, we were told to compete for the bronze," Dore said. "But I had said there was no sense in going at all if we were not shooting for the gold."

Canada, with its best showing yet, finished third in the medal standings behind Israel and the United States.

Now back in Montreal, Dore and Birsan hope to translate their summer triumph into success in the Canadian university ranks.

Birsan, who met Dore through his Maccabiah involvement and has since enrolled in Concordia's sports administration graduate diploma program, is being counted on to play a pivotal role in the Stingers drive to a Quebec championship. He did not take long to make an impression, scoring nine points in a 13-minute run in his first preseason game, despite battling the lingering effects of the flu.

"He's obviously a very mature guy with a lot of experience," Dore said. "Hopefully this maturity will rub off on the other guys, not only on the court, but off the court as well."

Birsan, a former member of Romania's national basketball team, says he is looking forward to his first season of North American basketball, although he admits the style of play differs greatly from what he is used to.

"In Europe, it's a more technical game with a lot of strategy and here it is more physical, more like the NBA game," he said. "It is a bit of a problem to adjust, but I have no choice. I cannot play the old fashioned game."

Community work prepares Stingers for life after university

When they've given all they've got, the great ones give more.

Although the phrase was originally coined in a feature about Tom Longboat, the great Canadian distance runner who won the Boston Marathon in 1907, it has come to mean many things to many people.

At Concordia University, the men's basketball team springs to mind. Once classes are over for the day and the class work is under control, once the daily practice session is complete and everyone has showered off the sweat, head coach John Dore demands more.

He takes his team out into the community to do volunteer work. Mostly he has the Stingers working with young adults, but there are a variety of programs the members of the team participate in.

Recently, they helped out at the Molson Centre, where it has become a Montreal tradition to take young ghosts and goblins trick-or-treating for Halloween in a safe and fun environment.

At Christmas time, you can usually find the men's basketball team at the Sun Youth Organization, where they wrap Christmas presents or help unload trucks and cars dropping off donations.

"I have certain expectations for the members of the team," says Dore. "Concordia basketball is about personal growth and development, social conscience and giving back to the community."

The community work dimension of being a Stinger basketball player is met with enthusiasm.

"It's important," says fourth-year Stinger forward Ezra Franklyn. "I can bust my knee tomorrow, but I have to be a man the rest of my life."

Of all the volunteer work the Concordia players do, working with children and young adults seems to have a special place with the Stingers. And, of course, if they can throw basketball in the mix, they're twice as eager.

"Through our involvement in the local community, our players realize the influence they have on young athletes," Dore says. "It benefits the teenagers we work with and our players, who really seem to enjoy the experiences."

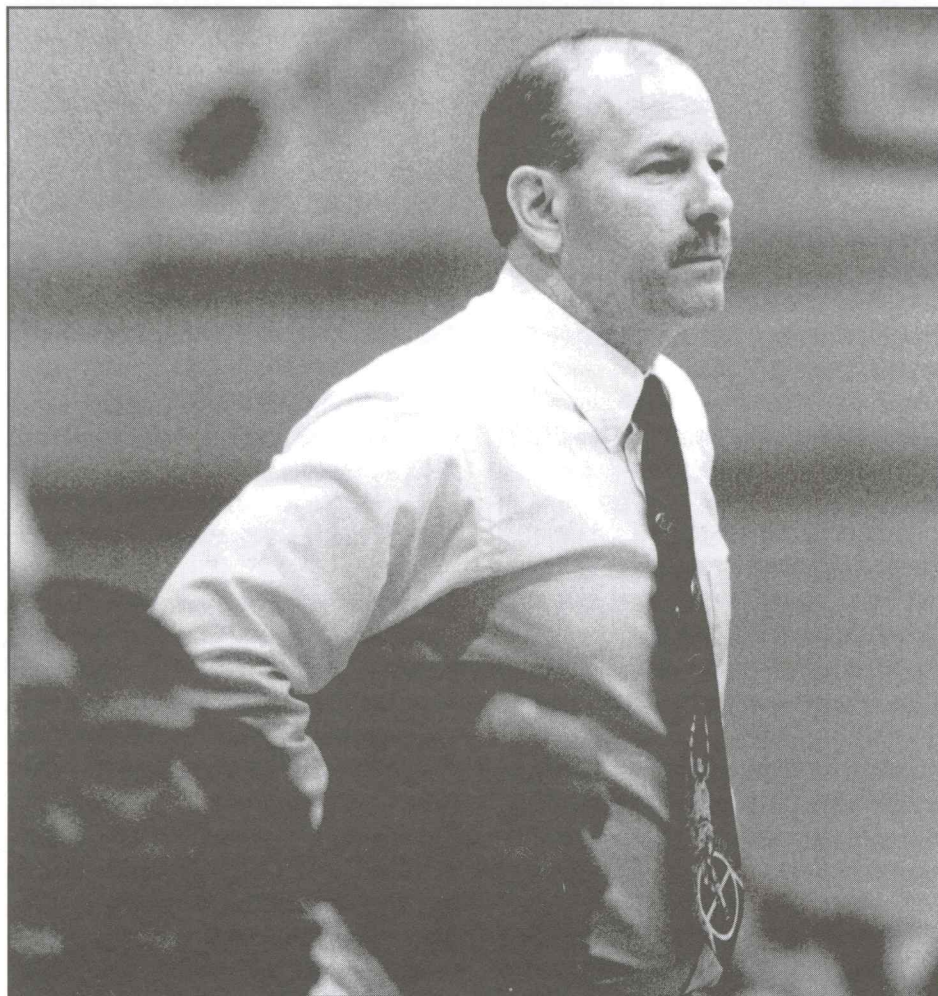

The Stingers give several basketball clinics in local high schools and they help run the annual Greater Montreal Athletic Association high school basketball all-star games.

Although it doesn't start out that way, their volunteer experiences have led to summer jobs and even careers for some current and former Stingers. Several basketball players have worked at Concordia Summer Sports Camp over the years, and Franklyn started out as a summer counselor at the Hillcrest Summer Day Camp in Laval, just North of Montreal, but before long he was running an evening basketball program in more than 20 parks.

"I learned a lot of patience," says Franklyn. "I learned what it takes to be a parent. I was told by some people in Laval that I should take up a career working with kids. I love kids, but I'm not sure."

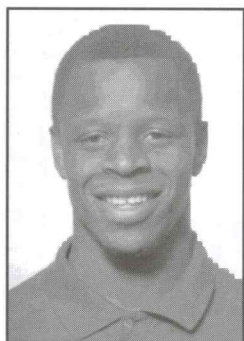

One thing Franklyn is sure about is the message he wants to send the children and teens he works with. Using his influence as a role model is something he's learned about with the Stingers.

"I always stress four major things," he says. "Family, be good to yourself, do well in school and no drugs."

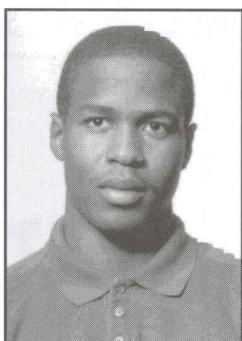

If you want to play for John Dore's Stingers, you have to give of yourself both on and off the basketball court.

Concordia Men's Basketball Coaches

John Dore
Head Coach

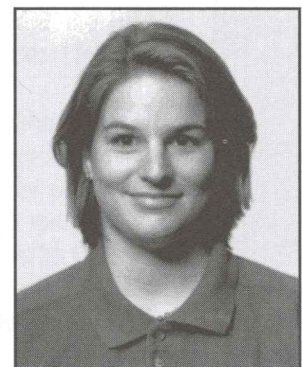

In his eight seasons as head coach of the Concordia Stingers men's basketball program, John Dore has made seven trips to the CIAU national championship in Halifax. He won the coveted university crown in 1990 and had his second best showing in 1995, when the Stingers finished No. 2 in the nation. It was only last season that Dore's Stingers struggled, finishing second in Quebec.

In addition to having a reputation for winning, Dore is known for his ability to develop young athletes. An impressive number of All-Canadians have emerged under his tutelage. To that end, Dore has also worked extensively with Canada's various national teams. In 1995, he coached Canada's entry at the World University Games in Japan. Last summer, he led Canada's men's team to a gold medal at the Maccabiah Games in Israel.

Ernie Rosa
Assistant Coach

Ernie Rosa is in his third season as a Stinger assistant coach. Rosa is one of John Dore's top former players. He was a power forward and team captain, who ended his playing career by winning a national championship in 1990. Last spring, Rosa and his 1990 teammates were inducted into the Concordia Sports Hall of Fame. Rosa currently works for Montreal's Sun Youth Organization, where he is an administrator.

Invest in the Stingers

Signage:

The key to selling is location.

Where is an audience most captive?

At one of our sporting events.

Football Stadium: Concordia Stadium averages 20,000 spectators during the football season. In addition to this, during the summer months it is home to the Concordia Summer Sports Camp (300 children - ages 5 to 13 - and their parents every week).

Hockey Arena: Concordia Arena averages 60 varsity games per year, as well as more than 100 intramural events, thousands of students during final exams and many other organized hockey and roller hockey events. Concordia Arena also hosts a minimum of three major hockey tournaments every year:

The Theresa Humes Women's Invitational
Loyola High School Tournament
MBA Tournament

Gymnasium: The Concordia Gym hosts more than 70 basketball and volleyball games each year, as well as hundreds of intramural events, three major tournaments and final exams.

Football Stadium	$1,000
Arena	$1,000
Gymnasium	$1,000
Olympia (ice cleaner)	$1,000

For more information on signage and other Stinger marketing opportunities such as advertising in the 1997 basketball, football and hockey programs, call Gerry McGrath at (514) 848-3868.
